Granulated Eye Lids

Can be cured without cauterizing or scarring by the use of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve. We guarantee it to cure. 25c everywhere.

If the residents of New York City drank all of the milk that comes into the city each inhabitant would drink an average of seven barrels a year.

Maine has a number of deserted villages, among which not the least picturesque is Hanover, where the growth of trees is so thick that the ruined walls of the houses can hardly be seen. Forty families lived at Hanover at one time, and the schoolhouse held 60 pupils. All the families have disappeared from the section, and even a settlement some miles away contains no survivors of the original Hanover.

He had been calling on her twice a week for six months, but had not proposed. He was a wise young man and therefore didn't think it necessary.

"Ethel," he said, as they were taking a moonlight stroll one evening, "I am going to ask you an important question." "Oh, George," she exclaimed, "this is so sudden! Why I—" "What I wanted to ask is this," he interrupted. "What date have you and your mother decided upon for our marriage?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE NEWS-HERALD.

BASEBALL SIGNS.

Their Importance Is Much Greater Than Their Number.

Among the players we do not use the word "signal." With us it is a "sign." There are not as many "signs" used on a ball club as the public would believe. Of course the catcher must "sign" the pitcher for every ball that he throws. That is to prevent confusion or, as we say, to keep from "crossing each other." The catcher has a sign for a curve ball, a fast ball and a slow one.

To ball players all curve balls, such as the drop and the outcurve, are called "a curve." The catcher gives the same sign for any one of them. We do not call a ball that jumps "in" a curve. Ball players do not recognize the incurve. That is called a fast ball. Any ball thrown by a right handed pitcher with sufficient speed will jump inward to a slight degree. The outcurve and drop are unnatural curves, and the ball must be spun in an unnatural manner to get that peculiar "break."

The only other "sign" of importance is the one the batter gives to the runner when he intends to hit the ball. If he wants the runner to start as he swings (the hit and run play) he gives him a certain sign. There are any number of signs used for this play. Sometimes the batter gives it by rubbing his hand over the small end of the bat. Again, he may give it by knocking the dust from his shoes with the big end of the bat.—John J. McGraw in Metropolitan Magazine.

A NEW BUILDING

For the Young Ladies at Ohio State University.

Of the 2,803 students enrolled in the Ohio State University this year, 632 are women. The number has shown a remarkable increase in recent years, having almost doubled in the last five. The 632 young ladies are distributed among the various departments as follows: 191 are in Domestic Science, 7 in Agriculture, 3 in Law, 3 in Pharmacy, 2 in Architecture, 48 in Education, and 384 are in the College of Arts.

While the young ladies constitute more than 20 per cent of the total enrollment in the University, there is not one whole building of the 20 which are devoted to instructional purposes that is devoted exclusively to the young ladies and their work.

Physical education, which is required of all during their first two years in the University, must be taken on the same floor that the boys use, and for this reason the floor must be used from 9 o'clock till noon—the worst hours of the day for recreative exercise. The locker accommodations are wholly inadequate. The room containing them is only 17x34 feet, and three girls must use a locker that was intended for only one.

In the Domestic Science department conditions almost as unsatisfactory obtain. This department, with its domestic art, and the Department of Art, are housed in the two smaller wings of Hayes Hall, while the large north wing is given over entirely to the Industrial Art shops for the boys.

So with these conditions it is little wonder that the young ladies are going to the legislature this winter to ask that the situation be alleviated. Seventy-five thousand dollars is the sum for which they will ask, and with this amount they can secure a building that will afford them ample room to house all the different social and educational activities in which they are engaged.

The type of building planned has the gymnasium in the center, the laboratories and lecture rooms in one wing, and parlors, assembly hall and offices for the Y. W. C. A., Women's Council and literary societies in the other wing.

Plans for the campaign have already been laid by the Women's Council, of which Miss Helen Zeller is president, and active operations will be started at once to bring the matter to the attention of the members of the legislature. "We are not suffragettes," as Miss Zeller puts it, "but we have some rights and claims which present conditions at the University do not satisfy."

SWIMMING ON DRY LAND

An Interesting Feature of Gymnastics at Ohio State University.

It is only recently that special apparatus for teaching swimming has been devised. Dr. H. Shindle Winger, physical director at the Ohio State University, designed the apparatus some five years ago. It consists of a broad band of webbing for supporting the body and two sets of straps for the wrists and ankles, all suspended by strong ropes from steel springs, so as to give the utmost freedom of action to the person.

The theory of swimming is that all movements should be made naturally and methodically, free from all spasms.

EAST INDIAN RUNNERS.

Kahars Who Can Regularly Make a Hundred Miles a Day.

Ordinary Marathon races seem rather insignificant compared with the regular performances of a certain east Indian caste. These Kahars, also known as Jhinwarb, live in the Punjab, where for centuries they have acted as runners, fishermen and water fowl catchers.

The men are trained runners and are said to be able to go a hundred miles a day without resting. According to Bally's Magazine, there is a well authenticated instance that Tika Ram, the son of Lulu Ram, carried dispatches 300 miles in three days—from Meerut to Meerut.

The point discussed, however, is whether the normal exertions of the Kahar post runners and the similar exertions of Jhinwarb men shortened their lives, and it appears that the Kahars, trained from childhood to be distance runners, live to be old men. They are not only able to withstand the strain of running great distances under a heavy load, but thrive under it.

The Jhinwarb man, too, notwithstanding his irregular diet, excessive use of liquor and exposure to the elements, lives to a reasonable age. In Tokyo when a census was taken of the Jhinwarb men a few years ago there were found to be more than 1,300 who were over fifty-five years of age.

Sailing Is So Interesting.

The lady was reading a nautical novel. She struggled along bravely for a few minutes, but finally had to appeal to her husband.

"Gerald," she said, "the author says that the boat was sailing 'wing and wing.' What does that mean? I've been on a yacht, but I never heard that before."

"That means," answered Gerald, rejoicing in the fact that he, too, had spent several hours on a sailing vessel—"that means that the schooner had her mains' out to port and her fores' out to starboard, or vice versa."

"Oh, I see!" cried the lady. "It's just like a chicken—a wing on each side. And now I understand why they call those little sails in the middle 'jibs.' It's short for 'jiblets,' of course. Isn't sailing interesting?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ancient Architecture.

Herr Knauth, the architect in charge of the Cathedral of Strassburg, has shown that the principles of construction followed by the great cathedral builders of former times are identical with those used by the builders of the Egyptian pyramids and are based on triangulation. The same simple geometrical figure underlies all these constructions. More than this, Herr Knauth traces the architectural principle in the formation of crystals and lays down this formula: "The laws of proportion in mediæval architecture are the geometrical laws of crystallization."

Cause of the Delay.

"Why is your friend staying so long in New York?"

"I don't know—haven't heard which of the two reasons is keeping him."

"Which of the two?"

"Yes, whether he is having too good a time to come away or has spent all his money and can't get away."—Buffalo Express.

Booksellers' English.

Booksellers' English is sometimes a peculiar product. In a recent catalogue the author of a work under the heading of "Mystical Theology" is referred to in a footnote as "next to Ignatius Loyola, perhaps the greatest soul sexton that ever handled shovel." The simile is startling and not quite intelligible to the lay understanding. But it is in reference to a volume of church music that this book seller really lets himself go. "Religious harmony must be moving, but noble without; grave, solemn, seraphic, fit for a martyr to play and an angel to hear."—London Chronicle.

The Cornetist's Teeth.

"Do you know the great dread of the cornetist?" said a cornet virtuoso. "I'll tell you, son—the loss of his teeth. Worst thing that could happen to him. It means the end of his playing. No man can play the cornet with false teeth. When his own cusps and canines are gone he loses his embouchure."—New York Press.

Discouragement.

"So you have quit laughing at your wife's hats?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Growcher. "The funnier they seem to me the more convinced she is that they must be correct in style."—Washington Star.

Psychology of the Crowd.

"What makes the crowd gather so over there?"

"Oh, vulgar curiosity, I suppose. Let's go over."—Harvard Lampoon.

Waste not fresh tears over old griefs.—Ætoliades.

Few people outside her family and her most intimate friends knew until the other day that Queen Alexandria is an expert mandolinist. Her tutor, Signor Leopold Francia, has now told how he first met his royal pupil in 1895, when he was appointed director of the Ladies' Mandolin and Guitar Band Orchestra.
